Q4

To reach our collective potential, we must work together to build up Ottawa. That requires a council in which each member commits to city wide leadership. What is your intended approach to collaboration with council, city staff and economic partners?

I have always been a person who brings people together to work together. Nothing works better than that. Connecting people and connecting the dots for people is in my DNA. The economic success of our business sector drives our Ottawa economy, which increases the ability for people to buy homes, which increases revenues for the City. Working with City staff and my fellow City Councillors to ensure that that positive feedback loop continues to be a positive feed back loop is our main job.

Q5

What key characteristics and skills do you possess that make you a great leader and ambassador for the city of Ottawa, and the national capital region?

I am smart, caring, collaborative, optimistic and experienced in so many of the areas that matter in municipal government. I have experience on many of the City's important boards that allow me to understand just how great this city is and what we need to work on. I have lived here for almost 30 years and have watched and helped the City to transform into a place where people want to live, work, play, learn and raise their children. I celebrate that and want to ensure that it always stays that way.

Q6

What are your top three priorities for Ottawa's future?

Ensuring that everyone understands the connection between greenspace, health and economic development.

Working together with social services and protective services to ensure we improve all of the social determinants of health that are directly correlated with economic prosperity.

Increasing and improving all forms of transit and transportation infrastructure.
